SAG pools closing soon after a year of positive outcomes for grower

Southern Ag Grain (SAG) today announced its 2010/11 wheat, barley and canola pools will be closing in the near future. This announcement came after an encouraging year that saw SAG deliver strong returns for growers across and increased crop.

SAG General Manager – Simon Wishart, said the Harvest pools will be closing in the near future as the extended harvest period draws to a close for Southern NSW growers

SAG are pleased to be in a position to offer growers a wide range of grain marketing options to handle such a difficult harvest and the response to SAG's harvest pools and the specifically designed feed wheat pools has been exceptional.

The 2010/11 marketing year has been extremely tough on our grower customers which has seen record volumes of feed wheat produced on the East Coast. SAG's ability to react quickly to grower needs is one of our strengths. The ability to quickly assess regional market conditions and develop innovative options to suite our grower needs is the highest priority for SAG and we will continue to look for future opportunities to develop such products for the benefit of our grower customers.

Southern Ag Grain looks forward to offering growers the popular Early Order Premium (EOP) again this coming March.

Mr Wishart said there had been many other positive outcomes for the company in the past year that had ultimately benefited growers.

Mr Wishart said the establishment of the 3 windows, express pool and the short term feed wheat pool contracts had been a great success, with no other grain company offering a similar contract in Australia.

"All of these contracts offer protection and flexibility to the grower. We have been overwhelmed with the response and look forward to reintroducing these again in 2011," he said.
